Restaurant Technologies, Inc.
Opens Depot in Nashville, Tennessee

MINNEAPOLIS, MINNESOTA, March 20, 2006 – Restaurant Technologies, Inc. (RTI), a leading provider of bulk cooking oil management services to the food service industry, is pleased to announce that the company has opened a depot in Nashville, Tennessee.

To celebrate the opening of the Nashville facility, RTI will hold a ribbon cutting at 1:00 p.m. on Tuesday, March 21. Attending the Grand Opening will be Jeffrey Kiesel, chief executive officer, and Paul Plooster, RTI's president, along with other RTI executives.

Rick Hinshaw, general manager, will oversee the facility and its operations, which are located at 226 Space Park Drive South. The depot will service RTI customers in roughly a 100 mile radius including the cities of Nashville, Clarksville and Cookeville, Tennessee, along with Bowling Green, Kentucky.

RTI has strategically located depots throughout the United States to support its customers, which include companies in the fast food industry, restaurants, grocery stores, school, hospitals and other food service providers. A depot serves as the distribution center for delivering new cooking oil and housing waste oil. Currently, RTI has 32 depots nationwide with plans to expand to 36 by the end of 2006.

"We are pleased to expand our operations into Tennessee," said Jeffrey R. Kiesel, chief executive officer at Restaurant Technologies, Inc. "Our customer base is growing and we believe RTI can provide more efficient delivery and service by opening this new facility. We look forward to be a part of the Nashville business community."
