How Our Portable Oil System Works

- Oil is delivered and picked-up via a lockable outdoor box
- The lockable outdoor box connects directly to two stationary tanks that hold fresh oil and used cooking oil respectively
- Employees add fresh oil to the portable unit and pump out used cooking oil at a fill station connected to the stationary tanks
- The portable oil system can be either parked near the kitchen with lines run directly to your fryer, or the portable can be moved into the kitchen to service fryers directly
- When the portable unit's waste tank is full or if the portable needs additional fresh oil, it is moved back to the fill station for service

Full Service Program

- No upfront costs or capital investment
- Includes all maintenance and repairs
- Multiple oil options
- Comprehensive training and continuing education
